Resident Brings Suit for Divorce

Fritz Brede filed a divorce complaint in district court here Thursday against Mrs. Nell Brede.

They were married in Alnsworth, Neb., March 16, 1921. No children are listed in the complaint.

He claims she is now in possession of two automobiles, a 1957 Ford and a 1946 Ford. He is in possession of a 1960 Ford. Their community property, he claims, consists of hand tools, $1,225 in government bonds and $500 to $600 in a bank account.

Brede alleges his wife has become extremely jealous and unjustly accuses him of associating with other women. He further charges she has refused and nagged at him so much it has affected his health.

He asks the court to make an even division of the property. Rayborn, Rayborn and Kramer are his attorneys.

Who says Private Ownership is bad?

When someone is against private ownership of property, he must be for something else. The communists make no bones about what they are for. They want to take your property away from you, and have it owned and managed by the state. In actual practice, the communists "state" is an inner ruling clique - men who wax fat and grow rich on the misery and unhappiness of others.

Private ownership is part of the basic philosophy of our American way of life. An American, even though born in poverty, may strive for success and happiness to the utmost of his ability. He may own a car, a home, shares in corporations, and may even have a business of his own.

It is the incentive of owning things without political domination and control that inspires Americans to rise to heights of ingenuity and productiveness that are the envy of the world. Private ownership is an important principle of our free enterprise system. Don't let anyone ever take this right away from you.

America's privately-owned banks continue to meet the increasing demands of individuals, businesses and communities for more and better banking services. Whenever you have a money problem, stop in at our bank and talk it over.

MAN AGAINST NATURE

Warm-hearted, admiring Americans are now hearing a rousing welcome to three members of the British expedition which successfully assaulted Mount Everest in 1953, including Sir Edmund Hillary, who got to the summit with Tenzing Norgay.

The whole world thrilled to their stunning achievement last May, and Americans were not least among those who paid tribute to their skill, courage, and resourcefulness.

But now, as then, there are some who question whether such talent and determination might not be better employed in projects more "useful" than mountain climbing.

We are not among the doubters. It seems to us that it is man's nature to explore the farthest, highest, deepest reaches of the unknown—whether the results of his quest are useful or not. Man is endowed with supreme curiosity, and this is it which sends him to every corner of the earth, against all hazard.

Moreover, man is a creature who has fought his way up toward civilization over untold thousands of years. Recorded history is but a tiny fragment of the human story. Through most of its unfolding, man has found himself in contest with raw nature.

Perhaps, even with the advances of time, there is in man's subconscious a hangover from this long test of strength. For in many men of today there resides a deep urge to return to the primitive struggle, to fight nature in the purest physical terms.

There seems little doubt that men who do pit themselves against the earth in naked combat know a special kind of joy that humans cannot experience any other way.

We cannot, we would not, ask that man curb either his curiosity or his primitive urge to battle nature. For it is these very same traits which are responsible for so much of "useful" human accomplishment on this earth. To curb man's spirit of adventure would be to crush the spirit that leads to constructive enterprises.

And why should we? What is wrong with pure adventure? Must men cross a treacherous rope bridge high over icy rapids only if they need to set up a machine gun nest or a scientific weather station on the other side? Why can't they do it just because they want to?

Men who show skill and courage in tasks of adventure are an example to all their fellow men. For they do not have to risk their lives; they simply choose to. That any men on earth are willing to do this can be a vast reassurance to countless others who must exhibit these or lesser qualities in grubbier but more purposeful tasks.

So let men climb mountains, descend into the depths and plunge into jungles. If any were so foolish as to try to stop them, it would be like excluding a part of man's brain, or cutting off a limb. To do these things is human, probably inevitable, and good for the spirit of every living man who hears of them.

WHO CAN REMEMBER?

It is now nearly 80 years since they smoked John Wilkes Booth out of a barn in Virginia and shot him to death. By then, Abe Lincoln had been dead for 10 days and his funeral cortege was already moving slowly toward Springfield, Ill., for the burial.

That was the afternoon of April 26, 1865. But it is not this date that Americans remember. For the traditions of freedom and democracy do not mark the moments of treachery and assassination.

The name of Abraham Lincoln, as every schoolboy and his grandfather knows, is commemorated on Feb. 12, his birthday. And the objects once familiar to the gaunt and bearded man from Springfield are familiar to his political heirs. Who does not know of the log cabin, the lessons copied on a shovel, the name of Ann Rutledge, the Emancipation Proclamation?

Yet Abe Lincoln was hated in his time. He was threatened, maligned, ridiculed. His married life was bitter. He was assassinated and vilified even to the third generation.

But history pours relentlessly through the sieve of time. And what remains is the image of a man who held the nation together in spite of one of the world's bloodiest wars. Year by year his stature grows, towering over the men who would hang labels on him or put words into his mouth.

And in the image we have of Abe Lincoln, we can see ourselves. That is why we celebrate Lincoln's birthday and forget the date of his death. Because the important thing for America is that he was born and lived and fulfilled his mission.

PLEASANT CONFUSION

New Congressman Lester Johnson of Wisconsin got the last laugh out of a mixup over his pretty teen-age twin daughters, June and Jane. They're dead ringers for each other and bound to cause a lot of pleasant confusion in Washington's sub-deb society.

They're so much alike that one time when the congressman was shown a new picture of his daughters, even his wife identified them incorrectly. Rep. Johnson told this story on himself to a girl reporter who came to interview him. So what happened when her story appeared in the paper with a picture of the Johnson twins? The captions were reversed, of course.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—The Jenner security committee's next exposure of alleged communist influence and infiltration at Washington will be an attempt to depict FDR as too tolerant and too glib toward Moscow conspirators in the midst of World War II. It may be a more sensational drama than the one which Harry S. Truman's White House press officer, Gen. William L. Jenner, ind. com. chairman, revealed the essentials of the story in a recent issue of the New York Times. Information was expected to remain silent or refused to remember the Jenner committee's charges. W. King, wartime chief of staff to FDR. The second was Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, hero of the Pacific.

Finally, Jenner was not giving any testimony. He appeared in a partisan role. Now, he will try to prove that he was not talking through a political hat, and the chances are that he will succeed.

KEY WITNESS—Jenner's key witness will be the brilliant Robert Morris, who won a reputation as a painstaking investigator in Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's committee. For reward, he was made a New York judge a few weeks ago.

According to Jenner's version, which has obviously got from Morris, FDR or somebody acting for him disbanded a naval intelligence section in 1944 when it was about to penetrate and break a communist plot to overthrow the United States. Some body also ordered the destruction of all naval intelligence files on our supposed ally's operations against us.

Morris was a member of the naval intelligence group in New York City. He had been told that Victor Kravchenko, a Russian purchasing official, was eager to tell him the truth about the Soviet Union, and was capitalizing on their lend-lease privileges to spy on our industrial and military setup. Kravchenko later wrote a bitter anti-Russian book entitled, "I Chose Freedom."

DEFINITE INSTRUCTIONS—When Morris' superior asked Washington for authority to question Kravchenko, he was ordered to "leave Kravchenko alone." Soon thereafter, the New York naval intelligence section was "scattered to the four winds" by orders from the Pentagon. Morris was called to Pearl Harbor, where he was told to "leave Kravchenko alone." The latter expressed his disbelief.

When King visited Pearl Harbor on an inspection trip, Morris was ordered to "leave Kravchenko alone." The latter expressed his disbelief. When King visited Pearl Harbor on an inspection trip, Morris was ordered to "leave Kravchenko alone." The latter expressed his disbelief.

EXPECTED CONFIRMATION OF STORY—Morris, under oath, is expected to confirm the Jenner revelation that the navy intelligence section was disbanded as the first witness in the new set of the communist drama.

Other members of the disbanded naval intelligence section are expected to corroborate his testimony. The Jenner committee, unlike certain other Capitol Hill investigators, carefully checks its facts through private sources before opening a case. King and Nimitz will be placed on the stand under oath.

WOULD DWARF OTHER CHARGES—In a certain sense, the Jenner charges are more damning than any previous exposure of Roosevelt-Truman trust in the Kremlin. It would dwarf Truman's promotion of communist agents and sympathizers after he had been warned against them by the FBI.

If FDR had secretly divulged the 1944 spying operation to his closest advisers, and they had taken the then Vice President Truman into the confidence, our government would have been forewarned against postwar red machinations. We might have prevented the Russians from grabbing eastern Europe and China.

We certainly would not have broken up our military machine, while Stalin strengthened his forces of conquest and kept not a single pledge he had given to FDR and America. And we might not have been spending 50 billion dollars a year to prove that the communists are as trustworthy as Morris and his group found them to be 10 years ago, only to be reprimanded for their pains.

SAME OLD STUFF After a long winter, no one appeared to be too surprised by the little showers. That is, until we found standing in the doorway of a store. He was grumbling something, then put his hand on our arm and pointed outside.

"Look at it," he said. "Rain in February and we haven't even had a snow yet. If the sun isn't anything for it to melt or thaw. It's just more of the same old stuff. Now it'll rain for about two months and we'll have another dry summer."

He went back to mulling as we hastened on into the store.

But the other day he finally tackled his motor and he's been riding down the alley, holding the bike while he went through the motions. He had to fall off to get the blamed thing stopped.

Then his mother told him to get on the thing "just like you daddy showed you." You could see he didn't have too much faith in the matter. He tried it, but he was shaking like a leaf. He was shouting, "Look! I did it! I'm riding!"

POT SHOTS

THEY WON'T LEAVE! Dear Polar: Remember how nice those school crossing signs looked when they were first put up and if there is one that isn't battered and torn, it's because it hasn't been seen. It seems I've read several times where some driver swerved into one of those signs and just kept on going, leaving the busted sign lying in the middle of the street.

It's quite a problem. Understand there's some talk in town now to replace those signs again, this time with some concrete diamond-shaped plaques about three feet high. Drivers won't be able to see them, either. But they won't hit 'em and drive away, either.

The way I look at it, if a driver can't see that warning sign, he won't be able to see a youngster, either. And if he'd keep on driving after hitting one of those signs, he'd keep on going after hitting a child. Maybe that's the solution—putting up something that'll stop 'em cold!

—Just received a bicycle from Santa Claus, but what with bad weather, lack of family cooperation and one thing and another, he hasn't been able to put in much time trying to learn how to ride. But the other day he finally tackled his motor and he's been riding down the alley, holding the bike while he went through the motions. He had to fall off to get the blamed thing stopped.

Then his mother told him to get on the thing "just like you daddy showed you." You could see he didn't have too much faith in the matter. He tried it, but he was shaking like a leaf. He was shouting, "Look! I did it! I'm riding!"

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

NEW YORK—One result of the brain-washing which has obliterated many of our basic American principles is expressed in remarks by the big labor union leaders. They believe in big business, cooperatives, and big business and living business are living to his contracts.

They hear more or less the same about David Dinkins of the garment workers' union. And it is all true. It seems to me that this is fine for all of us and for the country as a whole. Even newspaper editorials swallow the same fallacy.

But, when big union and big business get together, God help the rest of us.

For many years, the unionists, the new deal, Roosevelt, Truman and, of course, all the communists, insisted that the executives of big business were selfish, greedy and short-sighted. I do not agree entirely with this estimate, but I have known many of them called honest, able, some of them socially, and they are not altruists.

They seldom put principle before profit and convenience. Many have shown themselves in helping to get themselves out of the hands of the government and gifts of the shareholders' money, called bonuses.

They propose these bonuses and bonuses to themselves, put them into the pockets of their annual meetings, print the proposals in the press and put through luxurious benefits to themselves—all at the expense of poor people who have nothing in the world for their old age but these little investments and the dubious benefits of "social security."

Many, even after they have retired on their big pensions, still bring large incomes from the companies for giving advice. This, of course, is an outright racket.

Now this is the predominant type of man who represents big business and they are not to be trusted in deals which waive the rights of the workers and the shareholders. I earnestly assure you that my observations upon their character are largely true, although, of course, there are some individuals whose ideals are incorruptible.

If it was true 20 years ago that big business was predatory and selfish, and if nothing has happened since to improve the quality of men who run it, to imagine the dangers that confront us if such men now combine with similar men in control of big unions.

It was shown in the recent Santa Fe trial at Amarillo, Tex., that all but two of the big railroads had meekly agreed to the closed shop under the railway labor act.

In the Santa Fe case, a select group of individual employees and the railroad itself went into the state courts to challenge the act which permitted the closed shop notwithstanding any state laws to the contrary.

Texas and 15 other states have adopted legislative laws or constitutional amendments forbidding the closed shop. In Amarillo, Judge E. O. Nelson granted a permanent injunction forbidding the union to strike for a closed shop and forbidding the railroad to sign a closed shop agreement in Texas.

Ray Atkinson, Gov. of Texas, is the only other major railroad refusing to knuckle under to the union bosses. In other words, big business cooperated with big unionism and the employees lost valuable rights, both civil and financial, by decision of the hirings in the big offices of the railroads.

It is an unfortunate fact that many big business executives think of themselves as big business men. They should fight to defend the rights of the workers, too. They are not weaklings. If they were, they would not have reached the heights of the tough competition of big business. But many of them are ignorant of the moral and constitutional issues at stake in their decisions.

Ignorant or indifferent, they do as we see in the surrender of all the big roads. Two, out of the violence and immediate profit have considerations of terrible importance to all of us.

These executives think they are doing the smart thing if they support a violation of constitutional principle and thereby avert a strike which would cost a lot of money. Possibly a great loss really is prevented. But is that good for all of us, in the long run?

The net result of this collusion between two similar types of power, the tough competition of big business and the form of our government.

I am trying to emphasize the fact that, the president or chairman of a big corporation is not the custodian of the civil rights and constitutional freedom of the men employed by the company or yet to be employed.

He has no right to sign a contract which surrenders the right of these American citizens to refuse to join any private organization, whether a fraternity, church or a political society. Who do they think they are? God?

Incidentally, the unions are now free. Baby Chicks (cockers) at Globe Feed & Feed. Adv.

If You Miss This, Stay After School

Cultured or wild, I am one of the most beautiful of flowers. If you identify me by No. 6 you are good, by No. 4 very good, by No. 2 excellent. More than that, you'll better stay after hours with your botany teacher.

I am almost equally distributed through the colder and temperate regions of the northern hemisphere but scantily in the tropics at high elevations. Botanists are in the menhaden disarrangement over the number of my species—in no other genus, perhaps, are they so variable. I am a very common flower, but I am not always in bloom. I am a very common flower, but I am not always in bloom. I am a very common flower, but I am not always in bloom.

To children, eyeglasses are a nuisance. They hate to put them on, but once they are on they usually forget about them until the next time they need to place them on their noses. Occasionally, we find a child who dislikes the idea so much that he, or she, will hide them and the busy teacher will not notice.

3 Experts Hit, 1 Backs New Support Plan

Three Experts Hit
The new support plan for wheat, which has been recommended by the Federal Reserve Board, has been hit by three experts, while one backs it.

The plan, which would set a floor price of 35 cents for wheat, has been criticized by three experts. One of the critics is Dr. J. H. Johnson, professor of agricultural economics at the University of Nebraska. He stated that the plan would be a "change for the worse."

Another critic is John C. Calhoun, Harvard economics professor. He stated that the plan would be a "change for the worse." He also stated that the plan would be a "change for the worse."

Benson's Drive Is Aided by Bureau

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (U.S.)—The American Farm Bureau Federation is reinforcing Agriculture Secretary Benson in a drive to get the farmers themselves to push for the administration's support plan.

Benson, in a series of talks explaining the proposed shift to flexible price support, has urged farmers to "make your voice heard." The federation is planning to work through its local and state units.

Ex-Resident Convicted of Utah Slaying

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 12 (U.S.)—Despite his witness stand reputation of a confession, a third district court jury last night found 28-year-old fry cook Leon Livingston guilty of first degree murder for the slaying of Reik Bliender last summer in Idaho.

The jury, however, recommended "life imprisonment at hard labor" rather than execution, and Judge Albert H. Ellis indicated he would concur. He set sentencing for Feb. 20, Livingston formerly lived at Shoshone, Ida.

"I have the power to overrule your recommendation but I am not going to do it," Ellis told the jury.

Admitted Slurder
The on-looker defendant, Reik Bliender, a 21-year-old Dutch immigrant, in the back last July 11 as he returned to the residence where he was employed as a housemaid. He told police following his arrest he slayed the girl when she discovered him hiding in bushes near the house.

Livingston made a full confession to the police, but he took the witness stand Thursday and testified that officers told him what to say and that he said it because he was afraid. He declared everything he said in the confession had happened only in a dream.

Family Present
Livingston's mother, Mrs. Lee Edwards, and mother of his half sister, attended the trial and were present when the verdict was returned, but left immediately. Neither of the two defense attorneys was available immediately for comment as to whether the verdict would be appealed.

The jury took the case at 1:25 p.m., and deliberated three and one-half hours before returning the verdict.

Wool Growers to Present Plan for Support to USDA

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (U.S.)—Officials of the National Wool Growers association discussed in a closed session Thursday the plan they will take to the administration and price support bill offered last week in congress.

The plan, drafted by Ray Willoughby, San Angelo, Tex., 16 men representing sheep raisers of 12 western states prepared an outline of their views to present at a conference with Agriculture Secretary Benson today.

No announcement was made of action taken at the closed meeting, but it was understood that the association officials prepared a rough draft of a substitute bill they will suggest to Benson.

The measure offered last week by Chairman Hope R. Kins, of the house agriculture committee, would authorize the agricultural department to make unspecified amounts of incentive payments to encourage an annual domestic raw wool production of 300 million pounds.

The present clip runs between 225 and 240 million pounds a year.

Slicing of Beets Ended at Nampa

NAMPA, Feb. 12 (U.S.)—Amalgamated Sugar company's Nampa plant Wednesday night completed slicing of beets for the 180-day season. Production for 1938 amounted to approximately 14 million 100-pound bags, Manager Robert Van Horne announced.

The figure compared with more than a million bags for the 80-day campaign last year. Van Horne said the quality of sugar beets had been "above average."

Farm Leader Opposes U.S. Aid on Crops

BOISE, Feb. 12 (U.S.)—The president of the Idaho Horticultural society, Albert Paulsen, declared today that he is the only lawyer in the state who is against the U.S. aid on crops.

"I am opposed," he continued, "to price supports by the government at the cost of the taxpayer and subsidy that induce production of surplus."

St. C. Manis and Roland Fortman, University of Idaho economists, reported on two insect pests new to Idaho: A relative of the red-legged caterpillar which is the foliage of prune and apple trees, and parasitic, which attacks pear and quince trees.

Reuben Benz, a Valima, Wash., grower, urged a nationwide publicity program to counteract declining sales. He pointed out that per capita consumption of apples per year has dropped from 85 pounds to 25 pounds within a generation.

Chairman of Road Board Is Reelected

BOISE, Feb. 12 (U.S.)—The Idaho highway board unanimously reelected Roscoe C. Rice, Boise, as chairman and Leonard H. Fleen, Orofino, as vice chairman today. They have served in those capacities since the board's inception in 1931.

The board discussed speed-law regulations in the new motor vehicle code. Members pointed out that speed limits on state highways within 10 miles are 35 miles through business and residential areas.

These regulations remain in effect until the community asks the state board to change them. Such a request must be based upon an engineering traffic survey.

The board has set up a formula, based on the width of the streets and traffic count, for determining whether angle parking should be permitted.

Mayor L. L. Gardner, Coeur d'Alene, president of the Idaho Municipal League, commended the board in a letter for its plans to study street needs. He promised cooperation of municipal officials.

2 Women Enter Treasurer Race

BOISE, Feb. 12 (U.S.)—Two Boise women threw their hats in the ring today for the office of state treasurer, a post filled by members of their sex since 1893.

They are Mrs. Margaret Gilbert, a Republican, state treasurer since 1932, and Mrs. Ruth Moon, a Democrat, who held the post from 1944 to 1946.

Both women will have to win the primary elections of their parties this summer to take a place on the November ballot. The post carries a four-year term and is the highest in the state administration now held by a woman.

Mrs. Gilbert, Ada county treasurer for 18 years, was appointed to the post by Gov. Len Jordan to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. Lela Painter, who died in office.

Mrs. Moon, a Boise accountant, won the Democratic nomination for the office in 1948 and 1950 but was defeated later by Mrs. Painter.

SKIP STAHLEY IS NAMED HEAD FOOTBALL COACH AT IDAHO

Ex-Brown, Toledo Coach Unanimous Choice of Officials

MOSCOW, Feb. 12 (AP)—J. Neil (Skip) Stahley, a professor of the forward pass who has had four head-coaching jobs before, was named head football coach at the University of Idaho Thursday. Stahley, 44-year-old backfield coach of the professional Chicago Cardinals, was announced as the unanimous choice of a faculty committee that has spent weeks going through dozens of applications.

Declo Hornets Dump Valley In 51-44 Tilt

HAZELTON, Feb. 12 (AP)—Gary Vorpe paced the Declo Hornets to a 51-44 victory over the Valley Vikings here Thursday.

Vorpe potted a total of 17 points on two field goals and 13 free throws.

Roy Coulson topped the Vikings' scoring effort with 18 points in the first quarter 11-18 and held it at the half 25-22.

In the preliminary game, Valley defeated Declo 57-47.

Oregon Ducks Invade Idaho for Week-End; Vandals Need Win

The starry-eyed sophomores of Washington and Idaho's desperate Vandals take on the deadlocked pace setters of the Pacific Coast conference end with a delightful opportunity to scramble the basketball.

In the chill light of statistics Oregon State and Oregon roll over their challengers. Idaho sagged woefully against Washington last week, dropping the mantle of co-favorite along with two decisions.

But Idaho has the advantage of playing on its home court, with the Oregon Webfoots invading for Friday and Saturday sessions at Moscow.

The two divided their efforts at Eugene. With five of its last six conference games on the home floor, Idaho still cannot be counted out of the running.

This is underlined by the upsurge of Washington, which lost 14 of its first 15 starts but now has won three in a row. Oregon State took a pair from Washington in Seattle and normally would be a logical choice for another job victory.

To clinch the title, the Bruins must make a clean sweep of their remaining games.

If the Bruins should get by Pocatello and Idaho Falls and if Boise defeats Caldwell Friday at Boise, the race would be thrown into three-way tie of Boise, Twin Falls and Pocatello if Boise knocked off Twin Falls in the final game of the season.

Don Falken, Bruin coach, reports his squad is in "fine shape" for the up-coming week-end trek. He said he would go along with the same starting lineup that has opened for the Bruins all season, Bob Ridgeway, Knute Westergren, Roy Lydum, Gary Elms and Stan Rowell.

Around the rest of the valley, three Big Seven games are on tap for Friday with Flier leading Rupert, Gooding at Oakley and Buhl at Jerome. Rupert meets Gooding in Saturday's only Big Seven encounter.

The schedule: Friday

Buhl at Fairfield
Paul at Valley
Heyburn at Murtaugh
Castelford at Wendell
Oakley at Gooding
Rupert at Flier
Dietrich at Hansen
Buhl at Jerome

Saturday

Twin Falls at Idaho Falls
Murtaugh at Castelford
Rupert at Gooding
Mountain Home at Shoshone
Jerome at Nampa

NEW YORK, Feb. 12 (AP)—There are signs that the many major college basketball records intact by the time Furman's Frank Selvy finished his season on them this year.

Already holder of the top all-time average for a single season and the most points ever scored in a three-year career, the Cornish, Ky., fireball now is hot after these additional marks:

1. The all-time career total of 3,154 made by Jim Lacy, Baltimore, Md., in four years. Selvy has 2,948 so far in his uncompleted three years, needs 206 to break it.

2. Scoring average for a single season. Selvy himself set this with 29.5 last year. He is sure of a new all-time mark with his present average of 37.7.

3. Most points in one season. Johnny O'Brien set this with 864 last year. Selvy has 717, needs 147.

4. Career scoring average. Clyde Lovellette, Kansas, racked up this one with 24.8 for 77 games through 1937. Selvy now is averaging 30 points for 68 games.

5. Biggest two-year total held by Dick Groat, Duke, with 1,540. Selvy needs only 86 points to pass this mark.

Furman has seven regular season and at least two tournament games remaining on the schedule, so the six-foot-three springboard shooting wizard should have no trouble rewriting the record book.

The major college statistics, released Thursday, are brought up through games of Wednesday night.

For Selvy, the season's most serious challenger for the year's individual offensive honors.

Dayton Accepts NIT Invitation

NEW YORK, Feb. 12 (AP)—A third strong independent bid was added to the field for the National Invitation basketball tournament Thursday.

The Dayton college statistics, released Thursday, are brought up through games of Wednesday night.

The Dayton club has a 19-5 season record.

The tournament, to be played at Madison square garden, March 6-13, will have a 12-team field.

Bruins Invade Pocatello for Battle; Title Hinges on Outcome

The Twin Falls Bruins can take over the top rung in the Big Six conference night by defeating the Pocatello Indians in a game at Pocatello.

The Indians have a record of seven wins and two losses while an enthusiastic crowd of 6,000, including the Duke of Edinburgh, cheered him on.

Afterwards, Les Cotton, technical officer of the wind gauge, said the wind was backing an 11 mile per hour wind on the 70-yard straightway making up the stretch of the quarter-mile grass track.

This made the difference of six or seven seconds in Lemmy's time. Cotton said, "I believe it was worth at least 80 yards."

The official added the help of the wind on the backside failed to compensate for the slowing effect in the stretch.

The beary-haired Australian comet was disappointed after his time was announced.

"This was one of my best runs ever," he said. "I don't know why I didn't get a faster time."

"I think the slow time must have been due to the track. It felt better than the cinder track at Melbourne, but although I put a tremendous amount of effort into it, nothing happened."

1. Pharmaceutical industry – The pharmaceutical industry is a major contributor to the economy of the United States. It is a highly competitive industry with a high barrier to entry. The industry is characterized by a high level of research and development (R&D) spending, which is necessary to develop new drugs. The industry is also characterized by a high level of marketing spending, which is necessary to promote new drugs. The industry is a major source of employment in the United States.

Nurses Choose New Leaders

New officers of the First District Nurses association took over their duties for the first time Wednesday night during the meeting of the association at Magic Valley Memorial hospital. Seated are Charlotte Tripp, president, and Mrs. Clara Smith, secretary. Standing are Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, left, vice president, and Mrs. Ruth Griffith, board member. Mrs. Ann Sands, chairman of the private duty section, was absent. (Staff photo-entourage)

Cruelty Cited In Two Cases For Divorces

The suits for divorce were filed in district court here Wednesday with both plaintiffs charging cruelty.

In her action against Arthur O. Volst, Mrs. Valma M. Volst claims he failed to support her and caused her to leave home.

She asks the court to approve a property settlement, issue an order restraining him from molesting her or disposing of their property and direct him to pay their community debts.

Married in Seattle

They were married Oct. 3, 1933, in Seattle. She lists their community property as household furnishings, five tons of hay, a 1934 Chevrolet, a 1933 Chevrolet, farm tools and machinery, mechanic's tools and 10 acres of land.

She is represented by John C. Hepworth.

Mrs. Dorothy Joan Knauss claims Darrell Clark Knauss was abusive and caused her in her action against him.

She further charges he has told her he no longer loves her and has asked for a divorce so he can marry another woman in Michigan.

Property Listed

Mrs. Knauss lists their community property as an equity in a home here, household furnishings, a 1931 Ford, a trailer, tools and five guns.

They were married in Tijuana, Mexico, Nov. 28, 1935. They have two children.

She asks custody of the children and $100 per month for their support, $50 per month for her maintenance, $50 per month for payments on the home and attorney fees.

Mrs. Knauss also asks for the home and household furnishings. She asks the court to grant him the automobile, the trailer, the tools and guns. May and May are her attorneys.

Panel to Meet on Stream Pollution Control Measure

BOISE, Feb. 12—The Federal water resources advisory committee named a subcommittee Thursday to meet with officials of the State Chamber of Commerce on proposals for a stream pollution control bill.

The committee adjourned after considering a proposal submitted by the chamber Wednesday, calling for division of the state into regions, with proposals made by the committee prior to the last legislature.

Some of these proposals were submitted to the lawmakers, but failed to pass.

The committee voted to meet again the first week of April. They will go over the draft to be prepared by the subcommittee and chamber of commerce representatives.

At that time, they will discuss possibility of holding public hearings, a spokesman said.
